

How Are We?

Please tell me something,
and do not lie.

Is something fading
between you and I?

I've noticed changes
in the recent past
and waited patiently,
hoping it wouldn't last.

I give everything

I can give you,
but what's given back
seems long overdue.

You say nothing is wrong
and you are just fine,
acting as if the problem is mine.

Something is different,
not like it was before.

I'm doing my best,
trying to restore

The way we showed love
to one another
without crowding you
or trying to smother.

I just need to know
if one thing is true.

Do you still love me
as much as you used to?